2027 National Radio Science Meeting

5 - 7 January 2027 • Boulder Colorado

A special thank you to our former editor, Dr. Lauren Linkous, for her great service. As the inaugural Editor-in-Chief, Dr. L laid the foundation for this newsletter by creating the structure, design, and vision that continue to guide us today. We are deeply grateful for her creativity, dedication, and lasting impact. Dr. L would also like to share the credit with her two purry friends for their companionship, support, and inspiration throughout her creative work, including her thesis project. Thank you, Dr. L—and your wonderful feline co-editors—for leaving us such an incredible legacy!

The 53rd Annual National Radio Science Meeting (NRSM) will be held 5 - 7 January 2027 in Boulder, CO at The Limelight Hotel.

Submit your abstract/paper by 11 September 2026 (Paper Submission will open soon). The Call for Papers is now available.

USNC-URSI Student Support award. The NRSM will continue to have a plenary session, an invited Hans Liebe Lecture, commission meetings, workshops / short courses, exhibits, a Women in Radio Science (WIRS) reception, as well as a student paper competition, and a student mentoring luncheon.

Also, there is still time to propose special sessions or short courses/workshops at NRSM. Please contact us as needed.

Congratulations to the winners of the 2026 NRSM Student Paper Competition!

1. Mason Matrazzo, Auburn University
2. Joseph Gedney, The Ohio State University
3. Brenna Royersmith, University of Colorado Boulder

The Hans Liebe Lectureship Series in January 2026 features Dr. Juan Pardo. The title of his talk is: It all Started with Hans Liebe's MPM: "30 years Measuring the Atmospheric MM/SMM Spectrum from High and Dry Astronomical". The recording can be found here.
